This exclusive webinar is brought to you by MBAM Contracts and Practices Committee.

Investors are increasingly considering ESG issues to help manage investment risks. ESG performance ratings and reports show investors a company's efforts to mitigate risks and generate sustainable long-term financial returns. ESG transparency is, therefore, a key focus for companies in 2021 and beyond.

Following the signing of the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP) by Malaysia on 15 November 2020, doors will soon open to attract more investments and swell Malaysia's trade with partnering countries. However, are companies prepared for the legal implications arising from the implementation of RCEP policies?

Section 17A of the MACC Act was heralded as an important step by the Government and MACC in the fight against corruption as it forces companies to ensure that there is no corruption in its ranks. Under this provision, directors and senior management are liable for the actions of the company if it is involved in bribery unless it can prove that it has successfully implemented adequate procedures to prevent bribery.

The recurring lockdown in the country has put financial pressure on the construction industry. Contractors and developers alike face uncertain cash flow due to hindrances to work and downturn in the industry and potentially mounting debts. It is high time to know about corporate rescue mechanisms available for management of debts and creditors as well as the viability of such corporate rescue mechanisms in the context of existing contract obligations of a developer and a contractor.

Through this webinar learn how to leverage knowledge from the legal perspective and protect your organisation.
